

The SANDMAN STORY

HAUGHTY CHINAWARE

ON ONE shelf in the china closet sat the dainty cups and saucers and as they were on the highest shelf they felt themselves far above the other pieces of china though they were just as fine in quality.

"I do not know what the teapot would do without us," said one cup and saucer, "though we, of course, could get on quite well without the teapot."

"Oh, yes, very well indeed," said another, "and the sugar bowl and the creamer would be quite useless without us, I am sure."

"And there is Miss Teaspoon; she and all her family are quite dependent upon us, for how would she ever show off without us, I should like to know," said another cup and saucer; "we, of course, could get along without the other china but they would not be of any use without us. That is plain to all."

Madam Teapot felt herself quite as important as the cups and saucers and when from her seat near the edge of the shelf below she heard what was being said she began to feel quite disturbed.

"But They Could Not Dance."

"Indeed," she said, "if you can get along without us we will show you that we can get along very well without you."

All this Mrs. Teapot said to herself, but she slipped back on the shelf and beckoned to the sugar bowl and creamer and told them what she had heard.

"Now, tonight we will give a party right here on this shelf and we won't say a word to those haughty cups and saucers," she said.

"Oh, but they could not dance anyway," giggled the sugar bowl, "they haven't any legs."

Sugar bowl stopped suddenly as Mrs. Teapot and the cream jug looked at her, for her legs were much shorter than theirs and often they had called her "stubby."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

FACTS about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

MARGARET MARJORIE, MAISIE, MADGE, MEG, MAGGIE, PEGGY, MAY.

THIS is a fortunate woman who bears the name of Margaret or any of its many derivatives, for it has its origin in the most delicate fantasy. The name is derived from the Persian and is assigned the pearl as its own particular jewel, the idea originating from the beautiful notion that the oyster, rising to the surface of the water at night and opening its shell in adoration, received in its mouth a drop of dew congealed by the moonbeams into a pure pale gem.

Because a pearl of price is associated with the pearly gates of the Celestial City, Margaret has been the name given to innumerable saints in the various countries of the world. Cremona adopted it to represent its allegorical character of maidenly innocence and purity. Hungary accepted it also and Margaret Ethelberg, wife of Malcolm Canmore, took it to Scotland and made it the national Scottish feminine name. It went to Norway with the daughter of Alexander III and slipped into Germany as Margarethe. The eldest of the heiresses of Provence married St. Louis and left Marguerite to French princesses. Her niece, the daughter of Henry III, was the first English Margaret. In Italy, the name became Margherita, and through the penitence of Margherita of Cortona, which led to her canonization, and because of her humility, the daisy, the humblest flower of the field, became her especial symbol and was called by the French term "marguerite."

Marjorie, Maisie, Madge, Meg, Maggie, Peggy, and May are some of the English contractions of Margaret. The French Margot and the Spanish Margarita and the Italian Glidia also are derivatives.

Tennyson has immortalized the name in his exquisite poem:

O sweet pale Margaret,
O rare pale Margaret,
What lit your eyes with tearful power,
Like moonlight on your natal day
Your sorrow, only sorrow's shade,
Keeps real sorrow far away.

By wearing her natal stone, the pearl, the bearer of the name Margaret will fulfill the promise of the gods which gives her purity, charm, and affability. Monday should be her lucky day and 7 her lucky number. To dream of pearls signifies faithful friends, for the wearer of that particular gem.

Lucille Rickson

"The youngest leading lady on the screen," is the title that has been given to the charming "movie" star, Lucille Rickson. When she was four years old she was acting in pictures; she is only twelve now, thus she has been on the screen the past eight years. Lucille has a wealth of blonde hair and big brown eyes. She possesses a good singing voice and frequently makes personal appearances in Los Angeles. She lives with her mother and brother in Culver City, Calif.

Let us all remember that the higher we hold ourselves above others in this world the longer and harder the fall and if one is as easily crushed as the cups and saucers the more careful we should be not to hurt the feelings of others."

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

A sweet attractive kind of grace,
A full assurance given by looks.

—Matthew Rodgen.

FACIAL EXPRESSION

QUITE as much as his courteous words is the way he looks when he says them that makes a man's politeness truly effective. The only time when your "please" doesn't have to be backed up by a kindly look in your face is when you are talking over the telephone, but then it is essential that your tone of voice should carry assurance of kindness. And it is almost impossible to speak in a pleasant tone without looking pleasant. Try sometime for your own amusement to assume a "grouchy" expression and at the same time repeat some such courteous expression as: "Thank you very much," or "You are very kind, I'm sure," or "Please," in a thoroughly amiable tone of voice. Perhaps you can do it but most persons can't and it is just as hard to speak in a harsh or haughty or cantankerous manner when your facial expression is entirely pleasant.

But in your desire to wear a well-disposed expression don't go to the extreme of having a smile that won't come off. There are some people who go about with this sort of chronic smile, who look as if the only way they could endure the discomfort they were enduring was by a heroic effort to smile, and of course that sort of expression makes other people uncomfortable.

Then there is the smile that makes us feel that the one who wears it is always amused in an aloof sort of way at whatever we said or did. The woman who bears that sort of indelible smile—or grin, perhaps it should be called—when she calls on us looks as if she were immensely amused at the furniture, at the pictures on the wall, and at the way we were dressed.

No, we don't want to have any of these annoying stereotype smiles but the smile that is just an expression of kindness of heart which is the basis of all good breeding.

"I am annoyed by being very self-conscious whenever I mingle with people whom I do not know very well," writes a young reader. "And when I feel this way I know I look very self-conscious. We all have seen this self-conscious expression, I am sure, and though perhaps it does not repel it certainly does not attract us. Well, the only way to get rid of it is to get rid of the self-consciousness. Usually young people outgrow it. It is seldom that any one continues to feel self-conscious when he or she becomes accustomed to mingling with other persons. The only thing to do is to try to become absorbed in some other subject of thought than yourself. Listen intently to what other people are saying, study your surroundings and perhaps you will feel yourself graduating from your self-consciousness."

And if it be that all my trust

Real Wisdom in Advice.

It was a wise philosopher that invented this saying: "Live as if every moment were your last." If we could heed this advice what a different complexion the world would wear for us. Instantly new values would spring into the mind. The common things of life would take on hues of brilliance.

MOTHER RESCUES BOY FROM WELL

Had Broken Through Rotten Planking and Plunged 65 Feet to Bottom.

HUNG ON TILL SAVED

Incident Produces Three Heroes and Neighbors Find It Difficult to Decide Which of Three Is Bravest.

Ashland, Kan.—Western Clark county has three heroes, and it scarcely knows which of the three is bravest. They are Clarence Edwards, three years old; Clarence's mother, Mrs. Florence Edwards, and Charles Dobbs, a neighbor of the Edwards family.

Neighbors say they will take steps looking toward the bestowing of some kind of recognition or token on all three.

For a quarter of an hour the child clung to the top of casing near the bottom of a 65-foot water well, his head barely above the level of the water, which was 12 feet deep. He had fallen through the boards at the top of the well.

The mother insisted on being let down into the well by a rope, untying herself, tying it around her son, and stayed in water herself a quarter of an hour, waiting for help to hoist her to the top.

Stands on Rotten Boards.

Dobbs stood on the rotten boards covering the well while lowering the mother and hoisting up the child, at the risk of plunging through the boards himself.

The Edwards family was visiting at the home of Mrs. Edwards' father. The mother and her son were walking about the farm. The child ran ahead and his mother missed the boy. She searched for several minutes and at length came to the old well. Noticing one of the boards had been broken, she looked into the well and saw the head of her son bobbing above

The Boy Was Hauled Up to Safety. The water, nearly 60 feet below. The child, apparently, was holding to the top of the casing near the water level.

Summons Neighbors.

The mother ran to a nearby house and summoned Dobbs. He procured a rope and they ran to the well, to find the child still holding on.

Mrs. Edwards fastened one end of the rope around her waist. Dobbs stood on the well covering and lowered Mrs. Edwards. Holding to the side of the casing with one hand, she untied the rope and retied it about her son, and the boy was hauled up to safety.

When an attempt was made to hoist Mrs. Edwards after Dobbs had let down the rope again he found he was unequal to the task. He ran for more help and the efforts of several neighbors were enlisted before Mrs. Edwards could be lifted from the well.

EATON SUSPECTED

Gabriel Warden, Seattle capitalist, tells his butler he is expecting a caller, to be admitted without question. He informs his wife of danger that threatens him if he pursues a course he considers the only honorable one. Warden leaves the house in his car and meets a man whom he takes into the machine. When the car returns home, Warden is found dead, murdered, and alone. The caller, a young man, has been at Warden's house, but leaves unobserved. Bob Connery, conductor, receives orders to hold train for a party. Five men and a girl board the train, the Eastern Express. The father of the girl, Mr. Dorne, is the person for whom the train was held. Philip D. Eaton, a young man, also boarded the train. Dorne tells his daughter and his secretary, Don Avery, to find out what they can concerning him. The two make Eaton's acquaintance. Dorne is found nearly dead from a murder assault. A surgeon operates. Dorne is revealed as Basil Santoine, a great corporation lawyer.

Consulted continually by men concerned in great projects, immersed day and night in vast affairs, capable of living completely as he wished—he had been, at the age of forty-six, great but not famous, powerful but not publicly known. At that time an event had occurred which had forced the blind man out unwillingly from his obscurity.

This event had been the murder of the great western financier, Matthew Latron. There had been nothing in this affair which had in any way shadowed dishonor upon Santoine. So much as in his role of a mind without personality Santoine ever fought, he had fought against Latron; but his fight had been not against the man but against methods. There had come then a time of uncertainty and unrest; public consciousness was in the process of awakening to the knowledge that strange things, approaching close to the likeness of what men call crime, had been being done under the unassuming name of business. Scandal—financial scandal—breathed more strongly against Latron than perhaps against any of the other western men. He had been among their biggest; he had his enemies, of whom impersonally Santoine might have been counted one, and he had his friends, both in high places; he was a world figure. Then, all of a sudden, the man had been struck down—killed, because of some private quarrel, men whispered, by an obscure and till then unheard-of man.

The trembling wires and cables, which should have carried to the waiting world the expected news of Latron's conviction, carried instead the news of Latron's death; and disorder followed. The first public concern had been, of course, for the stocks and bonds of the great Latron properties; and Latron's bigness had seemed only further evidenced by the stanchness with which the Latron banks, the Latron railroads and mines and public utilities stood firm even against the shock of their builder's death. Assured of this, public interest had shifted to the trial, conviction and sentence of Latron's murderer; and it was during this trial that Santoine's name had become more publicly known. Not that the blind man was suspected of any knowledge—much less of any complicity—in the crime; the murder had been because of a purely private matter; but in the eager questioning into Latron's circumstances and surroundings previous to the crime, Santoine was summoned into court as a witness.

The blind man, led into the court, sitting sightless in the witness chair, revealing himself by his spoken, and even more by his withheld, replies as one of the unknown guiders of the destiny of the Continent and as counselor to the most powerful—himself till then hardly heard of but plainly one of the nation's "uncrowned rulers"—had caught the public sense. The fate of the murderer, the crime, even Latron himself, lost temporarily their interest in the public curiosity over the personality of Santoine.

It had been reported for some days that Santoine had come to Seattle directly after Warden's death; but when this was admitted, his associates had always been careful to add that Santoine, having been a close personal friend of Gabriel Warden, had come purely in a personal capacity, and the impression was given that Santoine had returned quietly some days before. The mere prolonging of his stay in the West was more than suggestive that affairs among the powerful were truly in such state as Warden had proclaimed; this attack upon Santoine, so similar to that which had slain Warden, and delivered within eleven days of Warden's death, must be of the gravest significance.

Connery stood overwhelmed for the moment with this fuller recognition of the seriousness of the disaster which had come upon this man entrusted to his charge; then he turned to the surgeon.

"Can you do anything for him here, Doctor?" he asked.

The surgeon glanced down the car. "That stateroom—is it occupied?"

"It's occupied by his daughter."

"We'll take him in there, then."

The four men lifted the inert figure of Basil Santoine, carried it into the drawing room and laid it on its back upon the bed.

"I have my instruments," Sinclair said. "I'll get them; but before I decide to do anything, I ought to see his daughter. Since she is here, her consent is necessary before any operation on him."

"Miss Santoine is in the observation car," Avery said. "I'll get her."

The tone was in some way false—Eaton could not tell exactly how. Avery started down the aisle.

"One moment, please, Mr. Avery!" said the conductor. "I'll ask you not to tell Miss Santoine before any other passenger that there has been an attack upon her father. Wait until you get her inside the door of this car."

"You yourself said nothing, then, that can have made her suspect it?" Eaton asked.

Connery shook his head; the conductor, in doubt and anxiety over exactly what action the situation called for—unable, too, to communicate any hint of it to his superiors to the west because of the wires being down—clearly had resolved to keep the attack upon Santoine secret for some time. "I said nothing definite even to the trainmen," he replied; "and I want you gentlemen to promise me before you leave this car that you will say nothing until I give you leave."

"Can You Do Anything for Him Here, Doctor?" He Asked.

His eyes shifted from the face of one to another, until he had assured himself that all agreed. As Avery left the car, Eaton found a seat in one of the end sections near the drawing room. He did not know whether to ask to leave the car, or whether he ought to remain; and he would have gone except for recollection of Harriet Santoine. Then the curtain at the end of the car was pushed further aside, and she came in.

She was very pale, but quite controlled, as Eaton knew she would be. She looked at Eaton, but did not speak as she passed; she went directly to the door of the drawing room, opened it and went in, followed by Avery. The door closed, and for a moment Eaton could hear voices inside the room—Harriet Santoine's, Sinclair's, Connery's. The conductor then came to the door of the drawing room and sent the porter for water and clean linen; Eaton heard the rip of linen being torn, and the car became filled with the smell of antiseptics.

Donald Avery came out of the drawing room and dropped into the seat across from Eaton. He seemed deeply thoughtful—so deeply, indeed, as to be almost unaware of Eaton's presence. And Eaton, observing him, again had the sense that Avery's absorption was completely in consequences to himself of what was going on behind the door—in how Basil Santoine's death or continued existence would affect the fortunes of Donald Avery.

A long time passed—how long, Eaton could not have told; he noted only that during it the shadows on the snowbank outside the window appreciably changed their position. Finally the door opened, and Harriet Santoine came out, paler than before, and now not quite so steady.

Eaton rose as she approached them; and Avery leaped up, all concern and sympathy for her immediately she appeared. He met her in the aisle and took her hand.

"Was it successful, dear?" Avery asked.

She shut her eyes before she answered, and stood holding to the back of a seat; then she opened her eyes, saw Eaton and recognized him and sat down in the seat where Avery had been sitting.

"Doctor Sinclair says we will know in four or five days," she replied to Avery; she turned then directly to Eaton. "He thought there probably was a clot under the skull, and he operated to find it and relieve it."

There was one, and we have done all we can; now we may only wait. Doctor Sinclair has appointed himself nurse; he says I can help him, but not just yet. I thought you would like to know."

"Thank you; I did want to know," Eaton acknowledged. He moved away from them, and sat down in one of the seats further down the car.

Soon he left for his own car, and as the door was closing behind him, a sound came to his ears from the car he just had left—a young girl suddenly crying in abandon. Harriet Santoine, he understood, must have broken down for the moment, after the strain of the operation; and Eaton halted as though to turn back, feeling the blood drive suddenly upon his heart. Then, recollecting that he had no right to go to her, he went on.

CHAPTER VII

Suspicion Fastens on Eaton.

Eaton found his car better filled than it had been before, for the people shifted from the car behind had been scattered through the train. Keeping himself to his section, he watched the car and outside the windows for signs of what investigation Connery and Avery were making. Whoever had attacked Santoine must still be upon the train, for no one could have escaped through the snow. No one could now escape. Avery and Connery and whoever else was making investigation with them evidently were not letting anyone know that an investigation was being made. Eaton went to lunch; on his way back from the diner, he saw the conductors with papers in their hands questioning a passenger. They evidently were starting systematically through the cars, examining each person; they were making the plea of necessity of a report to the railroad offices of names and addresses of all held up by the stoppage of the train.

Eaton started on toward the rear of the train.

"A moment, sir!" Connery called. Eaton halted. The conductor confronted him.

"Your name, sir?" Connery asked.

"Philip D. Eaton."

Connery wrote down the answer.

"Your address?"

"I—have no address. I was going to a hotel in Chicago—which one I hadn't decided yet."

"Where are you coming from?"

"From Asia."

"That's hardly an address, Mr. Eaton."

"I can give you no address abroad. I had no fixed address there. I was traveling most of the time. I arrived in Seattle by the Asiatic steamer and took this train."

"Ah! you came on the Tamba Maru."

Connery made note of this, as he had made note of all the other questions and answers. Then he said something to the Pullman conductor, who replied in the same low tone; what they said was not audible to Eaton.

"You can tell us at least where your family is, Mr. Eaton," Connery suggested.

"I have no family."

"Friends, then?"

"I—I have no friends."

"Nowhere?"

"Nowhere."

Connery pondered for several moments. "The Mr. Hillward—Lawrence Hillward, to whom the telegram was addressed which you claimed this morning, your associate who was to have taken this train with you—will you give me his address?"

"I don't know Hillward's address."

"Give me the address, then, of the man who sent the telegram."

"I am unable to do that, either."

Connery spoke again to the Pullman conductor, and they conversed inaudibly for a minute. "That is all, then," Connery said finally.

He signed his name to the sheet on which he had written Eaton's answers, and handed it to the Pullman conductor, who also signed it and returned it to him; then they went on to the passenger now occupying Section Four, without making any further comment.

Eaton told himself that there should be no danger to himself from this inquiry, directed against no one, but including comprehensively everyone on the train. When the conductors had left the car, he put his magazine away and went into the men's compartment to smoke and calm his nerves. His return to America had passed the bounds of recklessness; and what a situation he would now be in if his actions brought even serious suspicions against him! He finished his first cigar and was debating whether to light another, when he heard voices outside the car, and opening the window and looking out, he saw Connery and the brakeman struggling through the snow and making, apparently, some search. Presently Connery passed the door of the compartment carrying something loosely wrapped in a newspaper in his hands. Eaton finished his cigar and went back to his seat in the car.

As he glanced at the seat where he had left his locked traveling bag, he saw that the bag was no longer there. It stood now between the two seats on the floor, and picking it up and looking at it, he found it unfashioned and with marks about the lock which told plainly that it had been forced.

He set it on the floor between his knees and checked over its contents. Nothing had been taken, so far as he could tell; for the bag had contained only clothing, the Chinese dictionary and the box of cigars, and these all apparently were still there. He had laid out the things on the seat across from him while checking them up, and now he began to put them back in the bag. Suddenly he noticed that one of his socks was missing; what had been eleven pairs was now only ten pairs and one odd sock.

This disappearance of a single sock was so strange, so bizarre, so perplexing—that unless it was accidental—he could not account for it at all. No one opens a man's bag and steals one sock, and he was quite sure there had been eleven complete pairs there earlier in the day. Certainly then, it had been accidental: the bag had been opened, its contents taken out and examined, and in putting them back, one sock had been dropped unnoticed. The absence of the sock, then, meant no more than that the contents of the bag had been thoroughly investigated. By whom? By the man against whom the telegram directed to Lawrence Hillward had warned Eaton?

Ever since his receipt of the telegram, Eaton—as he passed through the train in going to and from the diner or for other reasons—had been trying covertly to determine which, if anyone, among the passengers, was the "one" who, the telegram had warned him, was "following" him. For at first he had interpreted it to mean that one of "them" whom he had to fear must be on the train. Later he had felt certain that this could not be the case, for otherwise any one of "them" who knew him would have spoken by this time. Now his suspicions that one of "them" must be aboard the train returned.

The bag certainly had not been carried out the forward door of the car, or he would have seen it from the compartment at that end of the car where he had sat smoking. The bag, therefore, had been carried out the rear door, and the man who had opened it, if a passenger, must still be in the rear part of the train.

Eaton, refilling his cigar-case to give his action a look of casualness, got up and went toward the rear of the train. A porter was still posted at the door of the Santoine car, who warned him to be quiet in passing through. The car, he found, was entirely empty; the door to the drawing room where Santoine lay was closed.

He went on into the observation car. A few men and women passengers here were reading or talking. Glancing on past them through the glass door at the end of the car, he saw Harriet Santoine standing alone on the observation platform. The girl did not see him; her back was toward the platform and the sound of the closing door came to her, she turned to meet him.

She looked white and tired, and faint gray shadows underneath her eyes showed where dark circles were beginning to form.

"Your Name, Sir?" Connery Asked.

"I am supposed to be resting," she explained quietly, accepting him as one who had the right to ask.

"How is your father?"

"Just the same; there may be no change, Doctor Sinclair says, for days. It seems all so sudden and so—terrible, Mr. Eaton."

"You dog!" he mouthed. "Harriet, this is the man that did it."

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT STAND

Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

Glens Falls, N. Y.—"For over two months I was so sick I was not able to stand on my feet, and my husband did my housework. The doctor said an operation might be necessary. I read testimonials about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began to take it. Before I had finished taking the first bottle I saw what good it was doing me. I am now well and strong, doing all my work for a family of four, all my washing and my sewing, which I think is remarkable, as I had not dared to run my sewing machine, but had done all my sewing by hand. I truly feel that were it not for your medicine I would not be here today as my case seemed very serious."—Mrs. GEORGE W. BURCHELL, Glens Falls, N. Y.

FOX CHASE 60 YEARS AGO

East Berlin was filled with people who assembled about the Tavern. There was much wrangling, and considerable drinking. Some of the hounds were excluded, as not full-blooded; these could run very fast for a mile or two, but could not hold out; they were penned in a stable, but, by some mistake, were let out, before the chase started, and this caused more wrangling. A fox in a box was taken to a hill. The hounds were held in leash, until the fox had ten minutes start; then, they were let go. There were probably 30 or 40 beautiful animals in the chase. The owners and other sports were mounted on horseback upon steeds, which could clear the fences, without difficulty, and each owner of a hound carried a tin horn, which he blew at will, and frequently, and the air was filled with music from the baying of the hounds, the sounds of the horns, and the shouting of horsemen. The fox escaped in the Pigeon Hills. John R. Kuhn in the "News."

The strike of Gettysburg carpenters, called on March 1, when workers in that trade laid down their tools after being refused a compromise increase of five cents an hour on their wages, seems to have run its course with both sides standing their grounds. Construction work is going ahead despite the strike of the so-called skilled carpenters, and contractors say there will be no let-up in work until after the spring and summer contracts are out of the way. Those who call themselves skilled carpenters, with one or two exceptions, positively refuse to go back to work at the old rate of 50 cents an hour.

Mrs. Edw. Slaybaugh, Center Mills, fell from a wagon while reaching over the front to recover the reins which had fallen down. She lost her balance and fell between the horses and wagon, bruising herself severely, but breaking no bones.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.—I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and have used many different medicines. I am nearly fifty years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to, now," writes George W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. These tablets contain no poison but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.

GETTYSBURG TIMES SOLD

The Gettysburg Times, the only daily paper in Adams county, has been sold to a company of Gettysburg business and professional men headed by John D. Keith, Esq., and S. G. Spangler, of Gettysburg, and M. C. Jones, of Hanover. With the property goes the Star and Sentinel, the Republican organ, a weekly newspaper of more than a century of uninterrupted publication. The company which has sold out has as its majority stockholder, W. Laver, of Gettysburg.
He bought The Times in 1909 and several years later bought the Star and Sentinel which, at that time, had both daily and weekly editions. He merged the daily into his own paper and discontinued the publication of his weekly, the Adams County News, turning its subscription list into that of his newly acquired Republican organ. Actual possession of the plant will be given within ten days, it is understood. No formal announcement of the policy of the new company has been made but it is understood that it will continue to operate the daily without any political affiliation, while the weekly will be operated as a Republican organ.
For the past four years Donald F. Ikeler, formerly of Bloomsburg, has been the editor of both papers. Richard Wolf, of Hanover, heads the re-portorial staff. The Times was founded more than a score of years ago by Madison A. Garvin, former member of the state legislature from Adams county.

Preceded by a young people's mass meeting held Tuesday evening, the 55th annual session of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the M. E. church, Harrisburg. Bishop William sion Wednesday morning in Grace
church, Harrisburg. Bishop William Frazier McDowell, of the Washington area, is presiding. The Rev. Harry Daniels, pastor of the Gettysburg M.
E. church, was accompanied to the conference by two laymen, C. F. Solt and W. I. Oyler. Wm. Kitzmiller and Willard Fleming, of Gettysburg, went as delegates to the boys' conference, as did Fred Birely, of New Oxford.

To keep his head above water a bull on the farm of A. J. Harbold, Franklintown, stood in an upright position for over three hours. Helen Harbold found him in a well which was 21 feet deep, in which there was 7 feet of water. The animal was rescued with block and tackle.

W. L. Crushong, Gettysburg R1, has purchased an Overland touring car,
as has also John Stick, Littlestown.

PIKES PEAK MOTOR

ALL OVER the country the new Chandler with its phenomenal motor is making its triumphant way.

Locally famous hills are being conquered with masterly decisivness. Traffic difficulties are being overcome with comforting ease.
Performance has been carried to a new high plane.

Notable Motor Improvements

Rarely has a car been received with such enthusiasm. Scarce 60 days have passed since its presentation. Yet capacity operations at the Chandler factory are failing to meet the demand.

Built to master a mountain, the new Chandler power plant has characteristics that rank it among the few truly great motors.

"Pinging" (pre-ignition knocking) has been eliminated. Heating has been overcome. Perfect carburetion and complete combustion assure economy, smoothness, and freedom from adjustments.

Beauty and New Low Prices

Additional factors—superb appearance and new low prices—contribute to the Chandler triumph.

LEAN BAKER, OVER

100 YEARS OLD, DEAD

Mrs. Leah Baker died on Saturday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Hannah A. Collins, York, at the advanced age of 100 years, 2 months and 18 days. Two paralytic strokes, one suffered two years ago, and the other two weeks ago, were responsible for her death. Her only near survivor is her sister, Mrs. Collins, who is 86 years old. Miss Baker was the daughter of John and Elizabeth Baker. She was born in East Berlin, on December 22, 1822. At an early age she was sent to live with her uncle, Samuel King, who conducted a hotel at what is now Farmers, along the Lincoln highway. After living at that place for a long time, Miss Baker became a domestic at the hotel owned by Abraham Straley, at Farmers, where she remained until twelve years ago, when she went to York to make her residence with her sister, Mrs. Collins, the sister, has lived in the same house for 32 years.

The centenarian distinctly remembered an incident that occurred during the Civil War. It was while she was living at King's hotel that General Gordon with a squad of 17 Confederate soldiers took possession of the place. They ate all the bread in the house, and Miss Baker and the other women were forced to bake bread on a Sunday.

Miss Baker was one of eight children, six sisters and two brothers. The other sisters and brothers included Adam Baker, East Berlin, and Joseph W. Baker, Virginia. It is not known if the last named is living or dead, as he has not been heard from for many years. All of the sisters lived to be at least 75 years old. The mother was 75 when she died, but the father died at the age of 49 years.

Despite her advanced age, Miss Baker prior to her last stroke, sat on a rocking chair in her room, although she was unable to walk about without aid. Miss Baker kept in touch with world affairs, although her sight and hearing were affected. Mrs. Collins would daily read the newspapers to her. The latter never left the side of her aged sister, and would keep vigil in a rocking chair beside that of her sister. Mrs. Collins has not slept in a bed for the past two years. Miss Baker had only been critically ill once in her life, and at that time she was confined to bed for a period of several years. Miss Baker had been a believer in the Reformed faith for more than 30 years. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at Holtzschman church.

DR. STANLEY ELECTED DIRECTOR

Dr. George D. Stanley, Gettysburg, was elected to membership on the board of directors at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, at the board's regular monthly meeting held at the hospital on Friday evening. Discussion of the need and the possibility of the erection of a nurses' home in connection with the hospital also took place. Five rooms at the hospital are used by nurses and the caretakers, and during the past winter occasions have frequently arisen when every one of these rooms might have been used as private quarters for patients. While the finances of the hospital are far from prosperous, it was stated that at the present they are better than for some time past. With little outside assistance it is believed the nurses' home could be erected. Painting the interior of the hospital has started. Doctors, organizations and others who have endowed rooms in the hospital will join in paying for the improvements. Following is the report of Miss Martha McKay, superintendent of the hospital, for February: Patients admitted, 32; patients discharged, 39; No. remaining at end of month, 25; No. of deaths, 3; Aver. No. of patients in the hospital daily, 26; No. of radiographs, 65; No. of laboratory examinations, 20; No. of cystoscopy treatments, 1; No. of intravenous administrations, 3; No. of special treatments, 18; No. of pay patients, 19; No. of part pay patients; No. charity patients, 11.

Rev. Daniels, as pastor of the Gettysburg-New Oxford M. E. charge makes the following report of work the past year: Total membership in the charge, 415; 680 in the Sunday school; $3,880 raised for benevolence during 1922 at the same time paying a local budget of $2,500, a total amount of $6,380 raised by the charge in one year; 2 adults and 42 children baptised; 35 new members received; 18 funerals conducted and 10 marriages performed.

To build the proposed Biglerville community building an agreement has been reached with the Rether Estate whereby two lots with a frontage of 122 feet have been secured. The following officers were chosen by the guarantors: Pres., E. Dale Helges; v. pres., Harry C. Bucher; secy., C. C. Muehe; treas., John H. Seasley; trustees, U. S. Kleinfeiler, G. W. Koser and D. A. Washington.

W. W. Wood, head football coach at Gettysburg college for the past two years, has been reelected to that position for another year at an increase in salary.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Rub Rheumatism or Sore, Aching Joints

Rheumatism is "pain" only. Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right into your sore, stiff, aching joints and muscles, and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. "St. Jacobs Oil" has relieved millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more lawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

Once your garment is in our hands your assurance of perfected work begins. Our cleaners are experts. "A trial will convince you"

BRODBECK GIVES $100,000

Former Congressman Andrew R. Brodbeck, an elder of Trinity Reformed church, Hanover, who several years ago gave $50,000 to the Forward Movement drive of the Reformed church, last week at the Men's Missionary Congress held in Lancaster, offered $100,000 for Reformed church Missionary work. Mr. Brodbeck at the Lancaster convention, discussed the subject, "Work That Laymen Can and Should Do." His announcement that he would increase his gift $50,000 to $100,000, was followed by that of another who would match his proposition.

Among the features, novel to Gettysburg churches, proposed for the new $90,000 M. E. church, plans for which are now under consideration, will be a set of chimneys. Plans of the new church building now under discussion call for a gymnasium and social rooms suitable to almost every church function. Tentative plans also call for a church auditorium with a seating capacity of approximately 440 persons, and a Sunday school room adjoining with a seating capacity of 600. Moveable partitions are to be erected between the church auditorium and the Sunday school room which can, in time of need, be opened to give one large room. It is believed that construction work upon the proposed edifice will be started during the coming summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Gilbert, Gettysburg, quietly celebrated their 61st anniversary of their wedding day at their home on Monday. Altho both are 86 years old, they are in a comparatively good state of health. Another couple, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob F. Deardorff, of Gettysburg R. D., on Sunday observed the 51st anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Deardorff is 75 years old and his wife is four years his junior. Both are in good health.

Miss May Adams and her co-workers, Miss Withington, Mrs. Siler, Miss Gardner and Mr. Adams, are conducting a revival service in the York Springs Methodist church. At their last meeting which was held at Bendersville 104 persons were converted.

The ice on the East Berlin mill dam cleared off last week. This is the first time the Conewago has been free of ice since it first froze over the beginning of December.

The gross receipts of the recent sauerkraut supper held by the York Springs M. E. congregation were $101.40.

Allen Stambaugh, Abbottstown, has contracted blood poison from a slight wound on the hand caused by a splinter of wood.

OXO-GAS

Made from Kerosene (Coal Oil) and Air
For Cooking and Heating

COAL IS SCARCER—IT WILL BE TO YOUR ADVANTAGE TO INVESTIGATE AT ONCE

The most efficient and economical method of producing heat from coal consists of extracting a gas from coal and burning the gas, but only about 35% of heat units are used in this way. In the ordinary stove only about 28% of the heat is utilized. OXO-GAS produced from common coal (kerosene), particularly when mixed with 96% of atmospheric air (oxygen), is the utilization of every heat unit of fuel.

AGED TRAMP FOUND

DEAD NEAR HANOVER

A tramp believed to be Henry Hancock, residence, unknown, was found dead in the barn on the farm of David Hoff, residing near the Hanover pumping station Friday afternoon, by Curtis Hoff, when he went to the barn to complete his evening's work. Chief Crabbs was called to the Hoff home and he ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment. Altho the man had been a frequent visitor at the Hoff home for the past 40 years his identity has never been known. He is aged about 33 years. Death it is thought was caused by asthma. The man made his trips to the Hoff home annually. He came Sunday a week and made a bed in the barn where he slept and on which he was found dead. Shortly after 9 o'clock Friday morning members of the family took his breakfast to the barn and he appeared in his usual health. When Curtis Hoff went to the barn that afternoon and spoke to the man, he received no answer. He investigated and found him dead. A letter in his pocket was the only means of identity, but because of its worn condition, the postmark is not visible. In the man's pockets were a number of papers and note books but nothing to tell anything of his life or his home. In one letter he referred to coming home and of a large amount of money. At another place were several sentences showing a religious feeling. In one book was an account of work done for farmers in that vicinity, all of which were marked paid.

WOMEN GIVE OUT

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this grateful woman's experience:

Mrs. H. W. Miller, 212 Baltimore St., Hanover, Pa., says: "I think a cold disordered my kidneys. My back became so sore that when I lay down I couldn't get the proper amount of sleep or rest. Often during the day a cutting pain went through my kidneys when I stooped at my work. I was annoyed by my nerves for a long time and my sight was blurred by tiny spots. My kidneys acted irregularly. I saw in the newspapers how highly Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended so I got some. Doan's did me good from the start and it wasn't long before I was rid of the trouble."

The Pneumonia Month.—March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ-laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.

John F. Miller died at his home in Hanover, Monday morning from a paralytic stroke, aged 58 years. His widow survives him together with 3 children.

Wednesday evening, Adam Becker, 82, of Midway, being missed from his home for a time, his wife went in search of him and discovered his lifeless body in an outhouse on the premises. He had been dead for some time when discovered. The cause was heart trouble. Dr. C. G. Crist, Coroner of Adams county, did not consider it necessary to hold an inquest.

Mr. Becker was a son of the late John and Sophia Becker. Fifty-four years ago he was married to Miss Lavina Kahlbaugh, who survives him with the following children: George, Charles, James and Frank Becker and Mrs. Curvin Cromer, Midway; Mrs. Nathan Houser and Mrs. James Lingg, Middletown; Mrs. Joseph Kuhn, of White Hall; Plus Becker, Hanover, and Emanuel Becker, McSherrytown. He is also survived by a brother, Henry Becker, Midway. He was a retired blacksmith and a veteran of the Civil War.

Mrs. Elizabeth Graybill, Hanover, died Friday afternoon, aged 77 years. Death came rather suddenly as the result of an attack of asthma and heart trouble which she suffered that afternoon. Mrs. Graybill, however, had not been well for some time. Her husband, Wm. Graybill, died five years ago. She was the daughter of the late Henry and Elizabeth (Johns) Waltman. Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Samuel C. Garber, Hanover, and Mrs. A. A. Stonessifer, York.

John D. Stoner, of Santa Barbara, Calif., died on Feb. 27, after a brief illness. He leaves three brothers, including C. A. Stoner, Gettysburg.

Mrs. Caroline Chronister, widow of George Chronister, died on Thursday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary George, in West York. Death was caused by infirmities. She was 94 years old. She formerly lived near Hampton, but for the past year had been living with Mrs. George. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. George, York and Mrs. Sarah Haverstock, East Berlin, and a son, Calvin Chronister, near East Berlin. She also leaves 12 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. The funeral was held from the home of her daughter, Monday, proceeding to the Lutheran church at Hampton, where further services and interment took place.

Noah Mummert, 69, died at the home of his nephew, Emory Garich, near Kingsdale, Sunday morning. Mr. Mummert had resided at the Garich home for the past 11 years. Death was due to apoplexy. His parents were the late Henry and Harriet Mummert. Surviving him are one brother and four sisters as follows: Henry Mummert, Ohio; Miss Eliza A. Mummert and Mrs. Adolphus S. Rittase, Hanover; Mrs. David Hess, Hanover; and Mrs. Benjamin Huffman, New Chester.

Robert, 6-year-old son of Claude and Grace M. Wagoner, of McSherrytown, died suddenly Friday from heart trouble. The boy was in school on Thursday and was only taken sick in the evening. He leaves his parents and 2 brothers and 2 sisters.

Benefits From Tanlac in Ending His Stomach and Rheumatic Troubles, Priceless, States Tucker.

"I wouldn't take $10,000 for the good Tanlac has done me," declared W. E. Tucker, 1120 North 28th St., Richmond, Va., a boxmaker for the Allegheny Box Co., recently.

"I thought I would have to give up the job I had been on seventeen years, but Tanlac has built me up eighteen pounds, and I never felt better in my life.

"I was so weak and run down and had lost so much weight and strength I just felt broken down all the time. I got up mornings awfully nervous, with no appetite, feeling like I hadn't slept a wink, and while on the job my nerves were so unstrung that the noise in the factory just tortured me. My liver wasn't acting right, and I suffered so much from rheumatism I could hardly use my arms.

"But Tanlac has made a clean sweep of my troubles, and now, with plenty of strength and energy, I am working and feeling fine."

Why Farmers are Turning to

In 1922 Chevrolet jumped from seventh to second place in sales of all cars, and to first place in sales of fully equipped modern cars.

Purchases by farmers were the chief factor in this remarkable development.

Farmers want automobiles not only of low first price, but also of low later cost for operation and maintenance.

They want room, comfort, and the ability to stand up under hard conditions.

They find that Chevrolet, fully equipped as sold, is the best value per dollar in the low-priced field, and neighbors tell them it costs less per mile to operate.

Canada Offers Farmers their chance to get ahead

If your hard work and investments are not giving you the return they should—If high land prices and high rentals are blocking your road to Success—If you are beginning to see how hard it is to compete with low-priced lands that are equally fertile, you owe it to yourself and your family to get the facts about farm opportunities in Canada. Lower-priced land—lower overhead—lower taxes and operating costs—may be the solution of your problem.

Low-Priced Land—the Secret

Virgin prairie land at $15 to $30 an acre, with long terms, if you want them, close to railways and market towns, schools, churches, telephones, highways—these vast virgin prairies offer you the last great farm opportunity. The fortunes of the United States were built on low-priced land. Those lands are now dear—perhaps beyond your reach—but Canada's lands are still low-priced. You may have missed the first chance—don't miss the last.

Your Own Farm—Prosperity, Happiness

The opportunity that fits your particular financial and family needs awaits you in Canada, and the Canadian Government Agent will help you find it. Land of great and continuous fertility. (Western Canada's wheat crop in 1922 was the biggest in history), land suitable for stock-raising, dairying, mixed farming, fodder crops, market gardening, to suit your experience and your pocketbook. Land that will pay for itself in a few years' crops; hundreds of Canadian farms have produced crops in one year worth more than the price of the land.

Rent If You Prefer—Pay Out of Profits

The Canadian Government has devised a means by which you can "try out" a farm for a year or two before investing, and at the same time increase your capital for the day when you are ready to buy a farm of your own. Many Canadian land owners are willing to rent a portion of their holdings; others are already retiring and will rent on easy terms, in some cases giving an option of purchase. If you have a farm outfit, or the means of buying it, even if your other capital is small, this is your chance to try out the country for yourself. Seeing is believing. See for yourself. A year or two on a rented farm may be the road to success. If you have present holdings which you cannot sell to advantage, hold them another year or two, conditions may improve, but start in Canada at once. Lands are being taken up; nothing is gained by delay.

Taxes Favor the Producing Farmer

Western Canada's tax system encourages farm production and the improvement of property. Taxes on an improved farm are less than on an unimproved one, and there are no taxes at all on the farmer's buildings, machinery, live stock, automobile, crops, or personal effects. Tax laws are designed to aid the farmer in building up a home of his own.

Get the Facts—Costs You Nothing

The Canadian Government maintains Information Bureaus where you can get the facts—dependable Government information without cost. The officials are not land agents—they have nothing personally to sell—they are salaried officials of the Government of Canada, maintained to be of service to you, without any charge. Let us know something of your position, and receive free book with maps, and the free service of the Canadian Government Agent in your territory; also information how special railway rates can be arranged for a trip of inspection. Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 18

JESUS CRUCIFIED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:33-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—He was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and with His stripes we are healed.—Isaiah 53:5.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Psa. 22:1-21; I Cor. 1:23, 24; Gal. 6:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Salvation Costs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Christ's Death.

We now face the greatest tragedy of all time. No record in the annals of history approaches it. It is the very climax of all history. Though unique in its blackness, from it flows streams of liberty and life for all the world. Let every teacher have the personal experience of Christ's death for him, and then get his pupils to see that Christ's death was instead of their own death.

I. The Place of Crucifixion (v. 33).

They led Him away to Calvary, a hill north of Jerusalem resembling a skull. Calvary is the Latin word and Golgotha is the Hebrew. This is a significant name for the place where man's redemption was accomplished. The skull is an apt picture of man's condition as the result of sin—life and intelligence are gone, leaving only the dark empty cavern which once contained them. Jesus was not crucified in the city for He was to suffer without the gate (Heb. 13:12).

II. His Companions on the Cross (v. 33).

Two malefactors were crucified with Him. Their names are not given. This is a fulfillment of the Scriptures. "He was numbered with the transgressors," (Isaiah 53:12).

III. His Forgiving Love (v. 34).

He cried, "Father, forgive them." He doubtless had in mind not only the soldiers who acted for the government, but the Jews who in their blindness were ignorant of the enormity of their crime. He had no hatred in His heart. He yearned for their salvation.

IV. The World Revealed (vv. 34-43).

Jesus Christ on the cross is the supreme touchstone laying bare the heart of the world. Take a cross section of the world at any time since Christ was crucified and representatives of their classes were found around Jesus on the cross. The cross is the judgment of this world (John 12:31).

1. The Covetous (v. 34). They gambled for His seamless robe right under the cross where He was dying. This represents those whose primary interest in Christ is a means to get gain.

2. The Indifferent (v. 35). The people stood beholding. The great mass of the world gaze upon the crucified Christ with stolid indifference.

3. The Scoffers (vv. 35-39). (1) The rulers reviled Him for His claim to being a Savior. They wanted a Savior, but not a crucified Savior. Many today are religious, but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in a blood atonement. (2) The soldiers reviled Him for claiming to be a king. The title, "King of the Jews" had been placed over him in bitter irony, but it was true, for by right of the Davidic covenant He shall be King over Israel (II Samuel 7:8-16). (3) The Impenitent Thief (v. 39). This brutal man joins in reviling the Savior even when he was under condemnation.

4. The Penitent (vv. 40-43). The conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. The salvation of this penitent thief is a remarkable picture of the saving power of Christ. The man confessed his sin as against God and cried to Jesus for salvation. He saw that the dying man was the forgiving God. The fact that he acknowledged his sin as against God showed that he was penitent. His request for Christ to remember him when He came into His kingdom shows that he recognized that the one who was dying on the cross was making atonement for sin and that he would come to reign as King. His salvation was immediate. Christ said, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise."

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 40-46).

So shocking was the crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the Godless crowd. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. When the price of sin was paid He cried with a loud voice showing that He still had vitality—that His death was not through exhaustion but by His sovereign will.

Manners.

Manners are the happy ways of doing things.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Time.

Time devours all human things, and it is but fitting that we should snatch something from it in our turn, which may turn to account in life eternal.—St. Vincent of Lerins.

A Cheerful Face.

A cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthy weather.—Franklin.

Taking Our Colors.

We take our colors, chameleon-like, from each other.—Chamfort.

WHEEZING NOISE IN HER THROAT WORRIED HER

Shortness of Breath and Choking Spells; Chest Rattled and Wheezed.

BALTIMORE LADY SAYS
HYPO-COD RELIEVED IT

"I surely was worried about my breathing. I would wheeze so loud in my chest and throat you could hear me all over the house. Then I would get short of breath and almost choke at times. Finally, after I had used inhalers, valves and all sorts of things, a good friend told me about this wonderful medicine, called Hypo-Cod and I sent to the drug store for it. It helped me so much I was almost cured after just a few days, so I kept right on taking it. By the time I had taken three bottles you could not see my system was tuning up fast and I gained ten pounds. From that time on it wasn't hard for my system to throw off and fight the trouble and soon my throat was okay and results were so amazing the whole family was surprised. In fact, it helped me so much in every way I guess everybody at our house has taken Hypo-Cod since then. I recommend Hypo-Cod because it was the only thing that ever did me any good at all. My family swears by Hypo-Cod," enthusiastically declared Mrs. A. Henry, 319 2½ St., Baltimore, Md.

If your system is too weak to throw off some minor ailment—don't try to cure the trouble—just get busy putting your system in fighting shape and soon as you build and tone yourself up your system will throw off such troubles like water out of a duck's back. Hypo-Cod is the most palatable, effective and powerful reconstructive tonic made. It is a wonderful strength-building tonic. It is pure, wholesome and not expensive at all. Even the smallest drug store has Hypo-Cod.—Advertisement.

Musical "Typewriter."

Music may be easily transported from one key to another, and also transcribed onto paper by means of a new device that is in the nature of a musical typewriter. The transposing apparatus consists of a portable keyboard that is superimposed upon the piano keyboard, along which it can be moved for a range of two octaves. Underneath each of the superimposed keys is a bent lever that transmits the impact of the finger to the corresponding piano key. Therefore, by shifting the superimposed keyboard, it is possible to change the key of any musical composition in any way desired. In connection with the transposing device is an attachment, which serves either as a score writer or to make a perforated record for player pianos.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

No Meeting.

A young reporter was sent out by the city editor of one of the Rochester papers to report a meeting.

About two hours after the assignment was made the young reporter returned with a sad countenance.

The city editor told him to get the report up immediately, as it was nearly time to go to press.

"There will not be any report on that meeting," was the answer.

"Why not?" queried the city editor.

"There was no meeting," replied the young reporter. "It broke up in a big row and the chairman was chucked under the table."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Kansan's Destructive Laugh.

In the days when horseflesh was in lower one of the hardest things in town was to get horses accustomed to Job Hofer's laugh. Every time he took off the main hatch and helped himself to a real mastodontic gurgle of glee there were two or three runaways down Main street. The horses largely have passed, but Job's laugh has the same devastating effect. Today he became amused at something while in Lem Lump's Ford, and two panes of window glass fell out.—Eldorado Times.

Longest Line.

If all the automobiles in the United States were lined up in a procession the string would reach four-fifths of the distance around the world, at the equator, or seven times the distance from New York to San Francisco.

The man who flirts with trouble is apt to get it where Uncle Bill got the carbuncle.

INFORMATION CAME TOO LATE

Small Boy Could Tell for Himself When Locomotion Was Actually in Progress.

The Woman was going to Indiana. With her were a young man and his four-year-old son. The train had not yet started.

"Daddy, have we started?" questioned the boy excitedly.

"No, son, I'll tell you when we do," the father answered, and continued to discuss with the Woman the unbecoming length of the new dresses.

"Are we going now, dad?" persisted the child, after a few seconds.

"Not yet, Bob. I'll tell you when," a few minutes later the train began to move. The father turned to his son.

"We've started now—sonny."

With an air of indifference the child answered:

"Oh, well, now I can tell by myself we're going."—Chicago Journal.

From guncotton there has been recently made a new product known as "vistra," which is made use of for some very novel purposes. Old Paintings Bring High Prices.

Fifteen paintings by early Italian masters, which belonged to the late William Solomon, were sold in New York a few days ago to one of the foremost art dealers in the country for more than a million dollars. The average cost to the new owners of the entire lot of pictures was about $70,000 apiece.
